

Cleaning Red Wine Stains

Suggested by Dan Ostler

I have tried many things over the years to clean those red grape and wine stains from my hands. The best I had found was some citric acid on a wet nail brush and scrub. Works well but if you have any small cuts it can really hurt!

Last week I went upstairs forgetting to clean my hands and was too lazy to go back to the basement. I opened the cabinet wondering if anything in the bathroom might work. I don't know why I picked it but I sprinkled some Eno on a wet nail brush and scrubbed my hands. It worked as well or better than the citric acid! It starts to foam as soon as it hits water and the good part is it doesn't seem to burn any cuts.

I really recommend you try it.
